July 29, 1949

Dear Admiral Hillenkoetter:

Our representative on the Joint Ad Hoc Committee which prepared ORE 46-49, "The Possibility of Direct Soviet Military Action During 1949" has advised me of the desirability of continuing operation of this committee in such a way as to form a pool for interdepartmental consideration of Soviet intentions for war. Probably all the intelligence organizations find frequent need for means by which, at any time, they may produce comprehensive, factual data as a basis of estimates on this subject. Also, it seems to me, that a committee engaged in studying Soviet intentions would be of great aid in handling most of the "crisis type" requests that are likely to arise.

25X1 We have, of course, just discussed and agreed to the establishment of a [] Committee to coordinate the intelligence approach to problems of world communism. That Committee, however, although its work will contribute in part to the analysis of Soviet intentions, has a distinctive responsibility of its own which takes in many other matters such as the development of Communist theory and Communist techniques, and the growth of Communist activity of all sorts in local situations throughout the world. I have in mind rather the need for continuing, current analysis closely applied to indications of the likelihood of Soviet military action, analysis which will integrate, for instance, OB information from all three Services with political and economic indications.

S. de, of Pa HC
I would like to suggest therefore that you consider establishing under CIA a permanent interdepartmental committee (which might be called the Watch Committee) to pool information on Soviet intentions for war. I attach a draft proposal which sets forth in detail a possible manner of operation and which might, together with this letter, form an item for discussion at the IAC.

Sincerely yours,

W. Park Armstrong, Jr.
